INTRODUCTION

This handsome villa with its classical architectural lines, formal gardens and beautiful parkland lies in the very heart of Italy, close to Lake Trasimeno on the border between Umbria and Tuscany.

La Scala was built in or around 1870 as a hunting lodge, and has a rich and interesting history. Approached by a tree-lined avenue from the small town of Pozzuolo, the property is surrounded by olive trees, cypress trees and green oaks. The rear elevation and formal garden, with its large saltwater and heated pool, face south. Grand classical steps planted with lavender and cypresses either side provide elegant access between the two.

The careful interior renovation of La Scala, completed in 2019, saw beautiful original features restored to their former glory, including cementine tiled bedroom floors and upstairs wall frescoes. The highlight, however, is the central, grand, elliptical, grey sandstone staircase, hand-carved from the local Pietra Serena stone, also known as Macigno. The staircase is a rare example and one of the best of its kind.

High-spec modern additions were included to balance comfort with the grandeur, while pared-back interiors allow the space and the materials, such as the Carrara marble kitchen counter top, to take centre stage.

The property is perfectly placed for exploring the region's abundance of hilltop towns and cities with their enduring cultural and culinary appeal, or the beaches and water sports of Lake Trasimeno. La Scala is within walking distance of Pozzuolo and offers guaranteed privacy.

KITCHEN

A long room with a tall ceiling and two wide arches that divide the space in three, accommodating a kitchen, dining room and cosy sitting area with a wood-burning stove. The high-spec luxury kitchen has a stainless steel Smeg professional cooking range with gas hob. The long, central island and work surfaces are topped with Carrara marble and current appliances include large Smeg fridge and freezer, a Miele dishwasher, and a cooling, filtering and sparkling drinking water system by Grohe Blue Home.

LIVINGROOM

The triple aspect drawing room, similar to the kitchen, is a long room divided into three separate areas by wide arches. The current layout has a more formal seating area at one end with a wood-burning stove, a less formal TV viewing spot at the other, with a small dining area occupying the middle part of the room.

OTHER ROOMS

Hallway: The grand entrance hallway has double doors with a fan light above, leading to a Pietra Serena sandstone staircase with an elegant figure-of-eight-design banister. Each step of this original staircase was hand-carved, its artistry exceptional, and it rises through the centre of the villa connecting the floors with grandeur and elegance. There are marble floors with under-floor heating throughout the ground floor and all the windows and French windows are double-glazed. There is a guest WC and a rear portico overlooking the south-facing gardens and pool. On the first floor: Study: The large study has restored frescoes on the ceiling and a tiled floor as well as a balcony overlooking the front of the house. There is also a laundry room, a separate WC, and a boiler and service room.
